A Message From
Mr. Pollard

The U.S. Department of Education has developed "Empowering Parents School Box: A Tool to Equip Parents for the School Year" located at www.ed.gov/parents/academic/involve/schoolbox. The following is an example of information which can be found on the web site:

Encourage Your Child to Read

Reading will help your child succeed. Start from an early age by reading to your child and listening to him or her read to you. Continue this habit through your child's early elementary school years. Make sure your child learns letters, learns how to put them together to make sounds, and then, learns how to recognize them on the page of a book. As your child begins to develop his or her reading skills, make sure your child is reading more difficult books. Ask your child questions to see if he or she understands what is being read. Introduce your child to languages other than English. Look for words in English that have come from other languages. If English is not your native language, help your child learn both your language and English.
